WHY YOUR SOCIALS GET LIKES BUT NO ENQUIRIES

The 6 fixes I'd make first. A free guide for service businesses.

POSTING ISN'T THE SAME AS MARKETING

You're posting. People are liking it. And the phone isn't ringing any more than it was.

I'm Heath. I've worked in digital marketing for more than 10 years and I've created over 30,000 social posts for Australian businesses. I do the work myself, here in Australia.

I've learned this one the hard way: good-looking posts don't bring in work on their own. I've had clients leave after a month because their feed looked great and their phone stayed quiet. They were right to be annoyed. So this guide isn't about a nicer feed. It's about the steps between someone seeing your post and contacting you.

What's in here

Page 3	How to find where your enquiries are leaking
Page 4	Fix 1: The 10-second profile test
Page 5	Fix 2: Post proof, not promos
Page 6	Fix 3: Talk to locals
Page 7	Fix 4: One next step per post
Page 8	Fix 5: Answer before they message someone else
Page 9	Fix 6: Put a small budget behind what's working
Pages 10-11	A one-hour weekly plan and what to measure

Who it's for: anyone who sells a service and needs enquiries. Trades, clinics, gyms, cleaners, salons, accountants and so on. If that's you, start with the test on page 4. It takes 10 minutes and it's free to fix.

THE REAL PROBLEM

FIND THE LEAK BEFORE YOU POST AGAIN

An enquiry from social media has to get through three steps. Posting more only helps with the first one.

SEEN
People in your area see you

→

TRUSTED
They believe you can do the job

→

CONTACTED
It's easy to reach you, and you answer

If any one step is broken, more posts won't help. You'd just be pouring more water into a leaky bucket. So work out where yours is leaking:

WHAT YOU'RE SEEING	THE LEAK	START WITH
Hardly anyone local sees your posts	Seen	Fix 3 and Fix 6
You get views and likes, but nobody clicks or messages	Trusted	Fix 2
People visit your profile, then leave	Contacted	Fix 1 and Fix 4
People message you, but they don't book	Contacted	Fix 5

Where to find the numbers

Open Meta Business Suite and look at Insights for the last 30 days. Check three things: how many people you reached, how many visited your profile, and how many tapped your link or button or sent a message. Then count the real enquiries that came from it.

Do this now: write down your enquiries from Facebook and Instagram last month. If you don't know the number, that's the first thing to fix. Page 11 shows you how to track it.

THE 10-SECOND PROFILE TEST

Someone who likes your post will usually check your profile before they contact you. They'll decide quickly.

Open your Instagram and Facebook on your phone, as if you've never heard of your business. Tick what's true:

- [ ] I can tell what you do in the first line of the bio
- [ ] I can tell which areas you work in
- [ ] There's a Call, Message or Book button, and it works
- [ ] The link goes to the right page, not an old one or a dead one
- [ ] Your profile picture is easy to recognise at thumbnail size
- [ ] The first few posts show real work, not just graphics
- [ ] I can see a reason to trust you: reviews, years in business, licences

Rewrite your bio

TELLS ME NOTHING

Family owned. Quality workmanship. Passionate about what we do.

TELLS ME WHAT TO DO NEXT

Emergency plumbing and hot water, Frankston to Mornington. 7 days. Tap to call.

Use this formula: what you do + where you do it + how to reach you. Leave out anything that every competitor could also say.

Score: anything under 7 out of 7 is a quick fix. Do it before you post anything else, because every post you've ever published sends people here.

POST PROOF, NOT PROMOS

Nobody books a service because of a "Happy Monday" graphic. They book because they've seen you do the job.

Five posts that build trust

POST TYPE	WHAT IT LOOKS LIKE
The job of the week	Before and after photos, the suburb, the problem and how you fixed it.
The question you keep getting	Answer it in 30 seconds on camera, or in a short caption.
The price explainer	What affects the cost and why cheap quotes can end up costing more. Exact prices are optional.
You, on camera	Your face and voice. People want to know who's turning up.
A customer's words	A screenshot of a real review, with the job it was for.

Swap these

INSTEAD OF

"We offer quality bathroom renovations at competitive prices."

POST

"This Mornington bathroom leaked for two years. Here's what we found behind the tiles."

Phone photos are fine. A real job shot on a phone usually beats a polished stock image, because it's obviously yours. Take five photos on every job, and you'll never run out of posts.

In health? If you're a registered practitioner, AHPRA restricts testimonials in advertising, so skip the review post and check your wording. Education posts are your best option.

TALK TO LOCALS

A follower three states away can like your post, but they can't hire you.

Service businesses often chase the wrong number. A thousand followers from all over the country are worth less than a hundred people within your service area. So make it obvious where you work, in every post.

How to make a post local

1. Name the suburb in the first line. "Finished this deck in Mount Eliza today" stops a Mount Eliza homeowner in a way "another great job" never will.
2. Add the location tag. It takes two seconds, and it tells people where the work was done.
3. Show places people recognise. Local streets, shops, schools, sporting clubs and events.
4. Talk about local problems. Salt air on the coast, clay soil, old weatherboards, the school holiday rush. It shows you actually work there.
5. Team up with nearby businesses. A builder and a plumber, a physio and a gym. Tag each other, and you both reach people nearby.
6. Engage like a local. Spend five minutes a day commenting on other local businesses and community pages, using your business profile.

The test: could this post have come from any business in any city? If yes, rewrite it until it couldn't.

Fix 6 covers the other half of this. Paid ads let you pick exactly which suburbs see you, which posting alone can't do.

FIX 4

ONE NEXT STEP PER POST

If you don't tell people what to do next, most of them will just keep scrolling.

Finish each post with one clear action. "Call, email, visit our website, or follow us" gives people too many choices.

Pick the one that fits

YOU SELL	TRY ENDING WITH
Urgent work	"Burst pipe? Call now, the number's in our bio."
Quoted jobs	"Send me a photo of yours by DM and I'll give you a rough idea of cost."
Appointments	"Book through the link in our bio. Thursday and Friday are still open."
Memberships or classes	"Comment TRIAL and I'll send you the details of a free session."
Professional services	"Not sure if this applies to you? Message me and I'll tell you straight."

Before and after

BEFORE

"Another happy customer! Contact us for all your roofing needs."

AFTER

"Fixed this leak in Frankston in one visit. Seeing a stain on your ceiling? Send me a photo and I'll tell you if it's urgent."

A photo or a one-word comment is a small first step, and it starts a real conversation.

Check the path: tap your own link and buttons from your phone. If it takes more than two taps to reach you, shorten it.

FIX 5

ANSWER BEFORE THEY MESSAGE SOMEONE ELSE

This is the quietest leak of all. The enquiry came in, and it sat there.

Someone who messages you is often messaging your competitors too. The first business to reply well has a real head start. You don't need to be on your phone all day. You just need a simple system.

Set it up once

1. Turn on notifications for messages and comments on both Facebook and Instagram. Check your "Requests" folder too, because new enquiries can land there.
2. Set an instant reply in Meta Business Suite so people know you've got their message and when you'll respond.
3. Pick your check times. Morning, lunch and knock-off. Same times every day.
4. Save your replies so you can answer in seconds. There's one below.
5. Move it to a phone call quickly. Ask for a number. Conversations in DMs tend to fizzle out.

COPY THIS SAVED REPLY

"Thanks for getting in touch! So I can give you a proper answer, what suburb are you in and what's the job? If it's easier, send me your number and I'll give you a quick call today."

Don't forget the comments

A comment like "how much for one of these?" is an enquiry. Reply publicly so others can see you're responsive, then follow up in a message. And go back through your old posts tonight. You may find enquiries that were never answered.

FIX 6

PUT A SMALL BUDGET BEHIND WHAT'S WORKING

Posts mostly reach people who already know you. Ads reach the locals who don't, and you choose who they are.

Do fixes 1 to 5 first. Ads send more people through your profile and your inbox, so any leak there will cost you money.

A simple first campaign

1. Pick your best real post: a job or a video that got comments or messages.
2. Use Meta Ads Manager instead of the Boost button, so you get more control over the goal and the audience.
3. Choose a goal that means enquiries: leads or messages, not likes or reach.
4. Set your location to the areas you actually service, and leave the rest of the targeting broad.
5. Start small. $10 to $20 a day is enough to learn from. Treat your first couple of weeks as a test.
6. Leave it alone for 7 days. Changing things every day stops you from learning what's working.

The only sum that matters

Cost per enquiry = ad spend ÷ real enquiries

Then ask: what's a customer worth to you, and how many enquiries does it take to win one? If one job pays for many enquiries, you can afford to keep going. If it doesn't, change the ad or the offer before you add budget. Ads don't come with guarantees, so test small before spending more.

THE PLAN

ONE HOUR A WEEK

You don't need to post daily. Three useful posts a week, done consistently, beats a daily scramble that stops after a fortnight.

The routine

WHEN	WHAT TO DO	TIME
On every job	Take five photos or one short video. Note the suburb and the problem.	2 min
One sitting a week	Pick your three best, write short captions and schedule them in Meta Business Suite.	40 min
Each day	Reply to messages and comments at your check times.	5 min
End of the month	Fill in the scorecard on page 11.	10 min

A sample week

DAY	POST	EXAMPLE (PLUMBER)
Tuesday	Job of the week	"Replaced this hot water system in Langwarrin. Here's how to tell if yours is on the way out."
Thursday	Common question	30-second video: "Why does my toilet keep running, and can I fix it myself?"
Saturday	A customer's words	A review screenshot and a photo of that job, ending with "Got a similar problem? Message me."

If you only do one thing: take photos on every job. Everything else in this guide gets easier once you have them.

THE SCORECARD

STOP COUNTING LIKES

Likes are easy to count, but they don't pay the bills. Track the numbers that do.

Ask every new customer one question

"How did you hear about me?"

Add it to your website form and your phone script, and write the answer down. It's the simplest tracking there is, and it picks up what the apps miss. Someone may see your post, then search your name on Google and call.

Your monthly scorecard

THIS MONTH	MONTH 1	MONTH 2	MONTH 3
Locals reached
Profile visits
Enquiries from social
Jobs won from social
Money from those jobs
Ad spend
Cost per enquiry

How to read it

- Reach is low: go back to Fix 3 and Fix 6.
- Reach is fine, but few enquiries: go back to Fix 1, 2 and 4.
- Enquiries, but few jobs: go back to Fix 5, then look at your quoting and follow-up.

RATHER HAVE IT DONE FOR YOU?

THIS IS WHAT I DO EVERY WEEK

Everything in this guide works if you do it yourself. If you'd rather stay on the tools, here's how I can take it off your hands.

WHERE I'D START FOR MOST BUSINESSES

Growth

$235 a week + GST

- Your Facebook and Instagram posts written, designed and scheduled
- Meta Ads or Google Ads run for you, including tracking
- Local SEO and your Google Business Profile managed
- Review requests, website care and a monthly report

Not ready for ads? Local Marketing Foundation

$140 a week + GST

Basic website care, plus branded social posts and captions scheduled for you.

Billed weekly and month to month. Ad spend is separate and paid directly to the platform. You supply photos and footage. I can't promise you a set number of leads, but you'll deal with me directly and see the numbers every month.
